DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wasmer et al. (5,005,069).

Wasmer et al. (Wasmer) discloses a rectification chip terminal structure 50 (fig. 4), mounting a rectification chip 66 into a terminal 62 by soldering 68, 74 and rubber injection 78, 88, 89 and inserting the rectification chip 66 into a pivotal hole 64 on a printed wire board 61, wherein said terminal comprising:

As to claim 1, a rib ring 69, surrounding the periphery of said terminal; a platform 65c extended from the middle section of said terminal 62; a first buffer groove (fig. 4) formed between said platform 65c and said rib ring 69, and having a groove guiding corner (fig. 4); thereby, when rubber 89 being injected into said terminal, the rubber 89 going through said first buffer groove (fig. 4) to constitute a fixing action, and capable of forming a plastic surface (fig. 4) to prevent water vapor and air from entering after the rubber being melted and solidified and thus increasing the adhesion between the injected rubber and said terminal; and said platform 65c (fig. 4) capable of increasing the soldering area of said rectification chip 66 (fig. 4) to give a complete solder between said terminal and chip and thus the result for providing the effect for a current of larger power is the same as the claimed present invention. See front page of Wasmer in the attachment.

As to claims 2-3, wherein said terminal is made integrally (col. 3, lines 26-27), and said terminal 62 has a plurality of protruded threads (fig. 4) on the surface of the periphery of said terminal 62 to facilitate assembling said terminal 62 into the pivotal hole 64 on a printed board 61, and the first buffer groove (fig. 3) has a second buffer groove (fig. 3) disposed in the first groove at a position corresponding to the bottom of the terminal 61 (fig. 4).
